

iCitizen: A week of learning, culture and friendship

After a long trip we arrived to the famous Liptod. We were all excited and willing to start the iCitizen project and live this experience.

From the beginning, the facilities exceeded our expectations, providing everything we needed for a comfortable stay. The organization of the project has been perfect and has ensured a smooth and enriching experience.

One of the highlights has undoubtedly been the local cuisine. First we enjoyed the local wine and started getting to know each other better. During the whole week we really enjoyed Istvan's food. It was delicious and gave us the energy that we needed.

One of the most important parts of the project are intercultural nights and breaks. Each country presents their country, their typical snacks and traditional dances. With that we can get even closer to each other. The Italians were the first to present their country, followed by the Spanish, then the Croatians and the Hungarian. Each country is very special and great.

Erasmus+ projects are perfect for travelling and meeting new people, but they also represent great learning opportunities.

During the iCitizen project we were able to enjoy many wonderful workshops related to the topic of digitalization. We gained digital skills essential for our future and we learned about AI, combating disinformation and better internet usage. The project not only gave us better technical knowledge but also helped us improve our personal skills, such as critical thinking and problem solving.

Thanks to this experience we are now better equipped to navigate and contribute to the digital world, both professionally and personally.

Descriptions of friendship change people to people. But when it comes to friendship in iCitizen, I believe it has the same meaning for all the participants. Even though we were in the project for a limited amount of time we were caring for each other, sparing some food and dancing at the end of the night all together. So we can say, even if time passes we will remember all the friendships we made here.
